

Hey Geeks!

Let us learn about MS-word through Geeksforgeeks.

Unlike most MS-DOS programs at the time, Microsoft Word was designed to be used with a mouse.^[13] Advertisements depicted the Microsoft Mouse, and described Word as a WYSIWYG, windowed word processor with the ability to undo and display bold, italic, and underlined text,^[16] although it could not render fonts.^[7] It was not initially popular, since its user interface was different from the
