A few PEOPLE stand about or stroll, nothing strange, so Dayton goes on his way.

He stops at a NEWSPAPER STAND and glances over some of the headlines. He frowns and slowly looks towards his shop. A HOODED FIGURE stands in front of it, looking through the windows. Dayton frowns and moves on.

Replace the newspaper stand with something else. They wouldn't have newspaper stands.

He takes another look behind him and sees the Figure slowly moving in his same direction.

EXT. DARK ALLEY -- EVENING

And throw him against a wall. The Thugs crowd near him, menacing.

DAYTON
What's your problem?

THUG1
You're the one with the problem, rich boy.

DAYTON
If I was rich would I live in this rat hole?

THUG2
Don't get smart with us, pretty boy. You're the only shop on this street that doesn't pay.

DAYTON
I'll tell you the same thing I tell them all: don't step on my toes and nobody gets hurt.

Suddenly a gun flashes in his face.

THUG1
Maybe you didn't hear me right.
