

Try these

5

Ice Breakers

for Your Virtual Teams

1

Favorite Things

Ask everyone to create a list based on the agreed category. Categories may include non-work related items like TV shows, songs, foods, etc. It may also use work-related categories like favorite product features and company events.

2

Two Truths and a Lie

Participants should prepare 3 interesting facts about them, one of which is a lie. Each member can vote which statement they think is just a lie and once everyone has voted, that same employee can now reveal the correct answer.

3

Take a Picture

Take a photo depending on the agreed subject and share a little history about the item. Desk item or shoes of the day are some of the samples.

4

Time Machine

Look into each employees' what ifs or future plans. Sample questions include:

- If you can go back to any of your younger selves, at what age would you choose to go back to?
- If you can go to the future, what particular aspect of your life would you have checked first?
- If you can give one piece of advice to your 7-year old self, what would it be?

5

Would You Rather

Ask participants any of these or come up with your own:

- Would you rather be the richest person in the world or the smartest?
- Would you rather be caught doing bathroom singing or making extremely dumb faces?
- Would you rather have no taste buds or be color blind?