

▶ The present continuous can have a future meaning. We use it here instead of the future with “going to”.

▶ We use it when we are talking about something we have arranged (decided) to do, and the moment when we are going to do it.