

Late to the Party

James and Sarah were running late to a New Year's Eve party. They were driving in James' car, and Sarah was navigating. James was driving on the right side of the road, and Sarah was sitting on the left side of the car.

Suddenly, Sarah realized that they had taken a wrong turn and were heading in the wrong direction. She told James to take the next left, but James turned right instead.

Sarah was confused and asked James why he had turned right instead of left. James replied that he had heard that the party was on the right side of the town, so he thought they should go right. Sarah laughed and told James that he was wrong, and that the party was actually on the left side of the town.

James was surprised and asked Sarah how she knew that. Sarah explained that she had seen the directions on the invitation, and that they clearly said to turn left at the roundabout. James felt embarrassed and apologized for his mistake. He quickly turned the car around and headed left.

They finally arrived at the party and they were right on time for the countdown. It began. And as the countdown reached one. James stated to Sarah 'at least I was right about one thing.' Sarah replied 'and what that?' James began to speak 'that this party, will be something we'll never forget.'
