

subluxation of the radial head within the annular ligament and only occurs in children when the radial head is still cylindrical and the annular ligament is relatively lax