

2024 BLUE RIDGE CALENDAR

PRESENTED BY RAYSWEATHER.COM

2024 BLUE RIDGE CALENDAR FEATURES

- $1 from every calendar sold will be donated to the Blue Ridge Conservancy (BRC)
- Information about BRC and the natural resources the organization protects
- 50+ photos from the RaysWeather.Com Blue Ridge Calendar Photo Contest
- Monthly climate data for high and low temperatures, precipitation, and snow
- Plus all the flora, fauna, and picturesque landscapes the Southern Appalachians has to offer
- Bonus November and December 2023 calendar pages

ABOUT THE COVER PHOTOGRAPHER: THOMAS MABRY

Thomas Mabry is an avid hiker and adventurer who loves photographing sunrises and sunsets all over the Southern Appalachians. His 2024 calendar entry gained his second RaysWeather.Com / Blue Ridge Conservancy cover and a featured photo for the fifth consecutive year. Known as Badger, Mabry has a gallery of his best prints at Banks Creek Barn in Linville, NC, and his portfolio can be found at instagram.com/honeybadgerimages. He is based in Asheville, NC.

ABOUT THE COVER PHOTO

Thomas writes, "Awakening at 3 a.m. to travel on the Blue Ridge Parkway is more enjoyable than one might realize. When a sunrise image at the base of the highest mountains in the eastern USA is calling, the mood gets even better. This photo exhibits a Blue Ridge panoply of color as dawn breaks from the Black Mountain Gap in August 2023. The beauty of the scene is unquestionably worth the sacrifice."