

Continual

is referring to something that occurs frequently and repetitively with intervals or pauses in between.

Example

The teacher provided continual feedback to the students, helping them improve their writing skills.

Continuous

is to describing something that occurs without interruption, break, or gaps.

Example

The continuous rain throughout the night caused flooding in several low-lying areas.

